Civil litigation

Support and advice, every step of the way

Know where you stand – and where to go next

Civil litigation usually means a court case dealing with a dispute between individuals or organisations, where compensation may be awarded. It can seem like a confusing business – often people are unsure about their rights, and do not know the best way to pursue a case.

Here at Andrew & Andrew, we have experience across a range of relevant fields, including:

- insurance
- contract disputes
- property litigation
- professional negligence
- insolvency
- debt recovery

How Andrew & Andrew can help

Before you embark on expensive court action, we can assess the risks you face, advise you on the best way to proceed (including mediation and arbitration), and explain the various funding options.

Litigation can be challenging in more ways than one. We can guide you through the process, helping you plan your finances and timetable.

Conducting negotiations

By talking with your opponent or their representative, we can work towards a settlement – or improve your chances in court by finding out more about your opponents position.

Dealing with reluctant insurers

We can help make sure the insurers, or those responsible for damage, compensate you for all your losses.

Debt recovery

If you can provide enough details of your debtor, we can enforce payment of the sums due to you. The interest on late payment and scale fees due from the debtor can go a long way to covering our fees.

Partnership disputes

Business partners sometimes fall out – especially when economic conditions are tough. We can help get you and your business back on track.

Insolvency

Company and personal insolvency is a drastic but effective way of collecting debts. Whichever side of the fence you fall, we can help.

Contract disputes

Small print can sometimes verge on misrepresentation and fraud. We can help with those contractual details which seem designed to confuse and stifle you and your business.

Professional negligence

Having problems with doctors or lawyers? Surveyors or accountants? We can advise you on all aspects of professional negligence.

Property litigation

Slow or defective construction projects often cause endless headaches. We can help make sure yours doesn't.

Boundary disputes

A problem with your neighbours can be one of the most traumatic disputes. We can advise you from the outset how to manage the psychological and legal aspects of the dispute.
