Violence and harassment?

Protect yourself with an injunction

Andrew & Andrew can help

If you are having trouble with violence or harassment from a partner, family member or neighbour, we can help protect you, with an injunction from the courts. We are very experienced in this work and can usually get an injunction within a day of you seeing us.

Call 0845 026 7614

What is an injunction?

This is a protection from the courts to stop your attacker. If it is breached, the police can get involved and the attacker can be removed from your home, or from an agreed local area. You can still seek this protection even if you do not show signs of being attacked, such as bruises. Multiple text messages or unwelcome phone calls counts as harassment, and the courts can also stop this.

Our aim is to help you get protection for you and your children through the law.

What does it cost?

Please call us and arrange to come in for a chat and we can discuss your case in confidence. Knowing the circumstances we can then tell you how much it would cost.

What to do next

If you have been attacked, or are worried about threats of violence, please call us on 0845 026 7614 and to talk to a member of our family team.
